How to order...

article copies out of journals via the article and journal search engine catalogue+

Search for parts of article titles, author names, journals or even numbers such as ISSN, DOI or PubmedID in our catalogue+. By clicking on order article you will be shown the detailed view of the order.

Attention: Not all of subito's stocks can be found in the catalogue+. You will not find any articles from books or book titles and no journals in the database that do not have an ISSN (mainly older journals). Search for them using the classic subito journal search. You can order books/copies of books via the subito book search.

How to order...

article copies out of journals via the journal search

If you want to search for journal titles or do not have full bibliographic information about an article, these are helpful tools:

Conventional search engines like google, Bing...:

- To find the full article or journal titles, especially if you know abbreviations, parts of titles or short titles only.
- To find the ISSN number of an e-journal or print journal adding terms like „print ISSN“ or „online ISSN“

You can put the information found there into the search slots on the subito website.

The screenshot shows a Google search interface. At the top, the search bar contains the text "chemical geology issn", which is circled in red. Below the search bar are navigation tabs: "Alle", "Bilder", "News", "Shopping", "Videos", "Mehr", and "Einstellungen". The search results indicate "Ungefähr 6.450.000 Ergebnisse (0,51 Sekunden)". A prominent banner for "Hinweise zum Datenschutz bei Google" is displayed, with buttons for "SPÄTER ERINNERN" and "ANSEHEN". Below the banner, the search results for "Wissenschaftliche Artikel zu chemical geology issn" are shown. The first result is "Physico-chemical analysis of the compressibility of ..." by Bolt, cited 521 times. The second is "Medical geology in tropical countries with special ..." by Dissanayake, cited 41 times. The third is "Geology and geochemistry of early arc-volcanic rocks ..." by Reagan, cited 139 times. Below these, the "Chemical Geology - Journal - Elsevier" is listed with the URL <https://www.journals.elsevier.com/chemical-geology> and a link to "Diese Seite übersetzen". A snippet of the journal's description is visible: "Chemical Geology is an international journal that publishes original research papers on ... View Articles published in Chemical Geology. ISSN: 0009-2541 ...", where the ISSN number is circled in red. At the bottom of the search results, there are links for "Guide for authors" and "Editorial board".

How to order...

article copies out of journals via the journal search

If you do not have full bibliographic information about the article or you need to do a first research on a topic, these are helpful tools, too:

WorldCat: <https://www.worldcat.org/>

- To find the journal, year of publication, page numbers etc. of your journal article

There are many more possibilities to find article information. You can use German library catalogues, for example:

KVK: <https://kvk.bibliothek.kit.edu>

Livivo: <https://www.livivo.de/> (medicine related articles)

GBV: <https://gso.gbv.de/>

BVB: <http://www.gateway-bayern.de/>

To search for the article title, author etc. is possible.

The screenshot shows the OCLC WorldCat search results page. The search bar at the top contains the text "uranium and other priority radionuclides" and is circled in red. A yellow callout box with a blue arrow points to the search bar, containing the text "To search for the article title, author etc. is possible." Below the search bar, the article title "The biogeochemistry and bioremediation of uranium and other priority radionuclides" is displayed. The author information is listed as "Author: Laura Newsome; Katherine Morris; Jonathan R Lloyd" with a link to their affiliation: "Research Centre for Radwaste and Decommissioning and Williamson Research Centre for Molecular Environmental Science, School of Earth, Atmospheric and Environmental Sciences, University of Manchester, Manchester M13 9PL, UK". The edition/format is listed as "Edition/Format: Article - English" and is circled in red. The publication information is listed as "Publication: Chemical Geology, v363 (2014-01-10): 164-184" and is also circled in red. The summary is listed as "Summary: Microbial metabolism has the potential to alter the solubility of a broad range of priority radionuclides, including uranium." On the right side of the page, there is a "Get a Copy" button and a link "Find a copy in the library".

How to order...

article copies out of journals via the journal search

Ordering with the PubMed-ID:

- If you order medicine associated articles you can also order with the PubMed-ID. This gives you the advantage that you do not have to insert the article data yourself.

You can do a content-related research on the PubMed website. The PubMed-ID (PMID) will be shown with the article information.

PubMed website:

<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/>

To search for the article title, author etc. is possible.

Ordering with the DOI-number:

You can order articles using the DOI-number. Almost all articles with publication date from the year 2000 onwards have got a DOI-number.

You can find the DOI-number using search engines like google or bing.

Advantages of the DOI-number: articles from all fields of science can be ordered using DOI.
